MR. DUFFY WILL CONTEST.

Dr. Sargent By no Means Secure in His Seat.

Mr. John C. Duffy, the Democratic candidate for Representative from Christian county, will contest the election of Dr. Andrew Sargent, his Republican opponent, whose majority is 466. The grounds of contest will be that the election officers were not divided as required by law in many precincts, and frauds of various kinds in the election. In two heavy Republican precincts assistant clerks were provided who were not sworn. In one Crofton precinct 130 ballots voted on colored sample ballots were counted for Sargent. A strong case will be made out.

Three Colored Officers.

The colored wing of the Republicans got three official positions in the distribution of pie last night, viz: E. W. Glass, councilman in Hopkinsville. Jas. L. Allensworth, corner of the county. John W. Knight, constable in North Hopkinsville district.

Fire-Works Postponed.

On account of rain Mr. John Due has determined to postpone his grand display of Centennial fire-works until Thursday night November 11. The display will equal that at Nashville for variety, local interest and splendor.

Will Toast the Judge.

Circuit court convenes in Murray Monday morning with a big docket, including several murder cases. It being Judge Breathitt's last court, he will be tendered a supper Tuesday evening by his many friends, both Democrats and Republicans—Paducah Visitor.

BRONCHO'S REWARD.

Franks Takes the Place of Vandell as Collector.

Washington, Nov. 6.—Yandell's resignation as Internal Revenue Collector of the Second District was placed in the President's hands by Senator Deboe this morning, and it has been accepted.

Senator Deboe, Dr. Hunter and E. T. Franks, Yandell's present Chief Deputy Collector, called at the White House, and when they emerged from the President's room Franks' face wore a pleasing smile.

It was due to the ready acceptance of Yandell's resignation by the President and his agreement to Franks' appointment.

Senator Deboe does not know whether Yandell will be willing or not to serve as Franks' deputy, but says that he may have it if he wants it.

DEATHS.

FAXON.—Miss Ollie Faxon, daughter of Mr. Edward Faxon, died last Thursday night at her home on Durrett avenue. She was 14 years old and leaves a large circle of friends to mourn her loss. Death was due to typhoid fever. The internment took place in Hopewell cemetery Friday.

LOCKARD.—D. D. Lockard died at the asylum last Wednesday night of uremia, aged 65 years. The remains were sent to Wickliffe, Ky., for interment. He had been an inmate of the institution for many years.

TUCKER.—Miss Ann Tucker, an asylum patient, died last Thursday night of softening of the brain, aged 48 years. The remains were shipped to Oakland, Ky., her old home, for interment.

KNIGHT.—Walter, the 18-month-old son of Mr. Jas. Knight, who resides a few miles north of the city, died last Thursday night. The burial took place in the family burying ground Friday afternoon.

At The Opera House To-night.

"The Heart of Chicago," which was successfully launched at the Lincoln Theatre in Chicago to the largest house in the history of that theatre, will be the next attraction at Holland's Opera House. It is said to be one of the best sensational melodramas produced in years and to contain some absolutely startling mechanical effects.

The Chicago newspapers pronounce the new railroad effort to be an absolute novelty and claim for it superiority over anything of the kind ever attempted. The Chicago fire scene also came in for unlimited praise. Other important works of the scenic painter and stage mechanic's art are the night illumination in the Court of Honor at the World's Fair Grounds; Mason's Temple Roof Garden at night and a Panoramic View of the South Side Business District and Lake Michigan. The interpreting company is said to be very strong. It will appear here this evening.

Fun News.

POB, Ky., Nov. 6.—The Circle meeting at New Barren Springs last Saturday was a success so far as dinner was concerned. They had lots of fine eatables on the ground for all. The crowd was large and the speeches were good. The big meeting is going on now, conducted by Revs. Alex. McCord and B. F. Hyde.

Messrs. Bob Hunter and James T. Wilson, of Haley's Mill, spent last Sunday evening and night with J. J. Barnes.

Aunt Agnes Barnes is not so well this week from the effects of a cancer. The protracted meeting at White Plains commenced last Saturday night and is still going on. Bro. Pope, of the Universalist persuasion, is conducting the preaching.

Miss Viona Long is visiting her aunt, Mrs. Mildred Hord, this week.

The Legislature All Rights.

The Democrats and Populists will have a two-thirds majority in both houses of the legislature. In the Senate there are 27 Democrats and 11 Republicans and in the House 75 Democrats and 25 Republicans. In the list of Democrats is included half a dozen Populists elected on fusion tickets, in Hancock, Barren, Trigg and other counties. Only one of the Democrats, Smith a holdover, is a gold man.

A MILLIONAIRE'S BODY.

Will Be Brought To Hopkinsville For Burial.

San Francisco, Cal. Nov. 5.—G. D. McLean, the millionaire of Grass Valley, Cal., died at the Lick house late last night after a lingering illness. He was attended by his nephew, William Blakey, of Evansville, Ind., who will take the remains East for interment. Mr. McLean was interested in many mining enterprises and with Stephen W. Dorsey owned the famous Maryland mine, noted as very valuable property.

To the above special the Evansville Courier of Saturday made the following reference:

"Captain William Blakey, the well-known lawyer, was called to San Francisco three weeks ago by the serious illness of Mr. McLean. The latter's death was not unexpected. The remains will arrive here Tuesday from California and be taken to Hopkinsville Ky., where the internment will occur. Mr. McLean had but one sister, the mother of Captain Blakey, of this city. He was a Kentuckian by birth and went West about forty-six years ago. He settled in California and with a friend engaged in the mining business. His investments in both gold and silver mines were profitable and he considered a fortune at his death, being several times a millionaire."

According to this, the body of Mr. McLean will arrive in this city this afternoon for interment.

REPUBLICANS HAVE IT

But There's Talk of Defeating Hanna Up in Ohio.

Columbus, O., Nov. 6.—The contest for control of the Ohio Legislature is considered ended today. The official counting in some counties will continue next week, but there has been such close watching of the material changes are expected. The indications are that the senate will stand 19 Democrats and 17 Republicans, and the House 51 Democrats and 58 Republicans, with a majority of five Republicans on joint ballot. There may be several contested seats, but these cannot be considered till the Legislature meets, the first Monday in January next. Since it seems to be settled that the Republicans have a very small majority on joint ballot, the rumors are revived about a combine of certain Republican members with the seventy Democratic members for the election of some one other than Senator Hanna on the joint ballot.

Notes From Howell.

Howell, Ky., Nov. 8.—We are now enjoying a very nice rain, and it was very much needed in this portion of the county.

Mr. Pete F. Fox, of this place, has accepted a position with John C. Lewis, of Louisville. Mr. Fox will be missed very much in the joint balloting, as he was one of the leading beaus of this place.

Mr. W. E. Embury, a prominent farmer of this place, has sold his farm to Mr. Aldrich. Mr. Embury is thinking of going to Florida to live. His friends are sorry to lose him, but hope he will be successful wherever he may go.

Miss Mattie May Radford, the belle of this place, who is attending B. F. College, Hopkinsville, Ky., came home Friday, Oct. 29, bringing with her quite a number of her schoolmates.

The young people of Garretttsburg and Howell vicinity spent a very pleasant day on Johnson's Creek, chestnut hunting Saturday. Among the number who attended were the following: Misses Mattie May Radford, Bertha King, Ida Fuqua, Annie Page, Bessie Leavell, Emma Stembeling, Mary Embury, Elizabeth Mearns, Sallie May Giles, Jessie Embury and Thura Lowry. Messrs J. R. Embury, Claude King, H. C. Embury, Olney M. Wilson, Hugh Major and E. B. Embury, Chaperoned by Messdames M. E. Bacon and D. C. Keatts.

Misses Page and Mason showed a great deal of skill on horse back riding with a young man behind to hold the reins.

We hope that the next time Miss Fuqua makes us a visit she will be fortunate enough to keep her beau awake, not that she was deficient in conversation but he was so sleepy.

Gov. Bradley's Thanksgiving Proclamation. State of Kentucky, Executive Department, Frankfort.—The 25th day of November next is hereby set apart and designated as a day for thanksgiving and prayer throughout the Commonwealth, and the people are requested to abstain from business and in every way observe the day as one on which grateful thanks should be rendered unto the Most High.

In testimony of which the seal of the Commonwealth is affixed in this the capital of the State, on the 4th day of November, 1897, and the 106th year of the Commonwealth. By the Governor.

WILLIAM O. BRADLEY,
E. D. GUPP, Gov. of Kentucky,
Assistant Secretary of State.

BE PATIENT.

Oh heart of mine, be patient!
Some glad day,
With all life's passing problems
Solved for aye!
With all its storms and doubtings
Cleared away!
With all its little disappointments past—
It shall be thine to understand at last.
The patient: some sweet day
The anxious care,
The fears and trials, and the
Hidden snare,
The grief that comes upon thee
Unaware,
Shall with the dawning years be laid aside,
And thou shalt then be fully satisfied.
Be patient: keep thy life-work
Well in hand,
Thy lot, whatever it be, is
Wisely planned.
What's his mystery, God holds the key:
Thou wilt cannot trust him, and he will patiently.

THE BOY WITH A LASSO.

BY EDWARD WILLETT.

"Seems to me that those fellows do not think I amount to much," muttered Sam Roden, as he walked away from a knot of Mr. Robey's pupils who had shut him out of their sports. Sam was not much mistaken in his guess. He had just entered the school, and he had come from far-off Texas, and his life had been passed on a cattle farm, where he had had few opportunities for study, and of those few he had availed himself but poorly. He was "low down" in Mr. Robey's school, and the boys voted him heavy and stupid, and named him "Texas."

"Very well," said Sam. "I may teach them a thing or two yet. I will stick to those studies, and if there is anything in them, I mean to dig it out, or go home and 'tend cattle.'"

The next day of the next Saturday of the term, and the boys had planned a grand excursion into the woods.

Early in the morning they set out, loaded with provisions, fishing tackle, and all appliances for a big holiday, with the exception of guns, which were not allowed.

Sam Roden carried nothing but a long and strong rope, which he had been greasing and working over for two days, and in the end of which he had skillfully knotted a snipnose. "What are you going to do with that, Texas?" asked Ben Travis.

"Just taking it along to play with," Sam replied. "It sort of reminds me of home, and I don't want to forget my old tricks while I am learning new ones."

After walking through the woods, they came to Swift creek, a narrow, deep and rapid stream. It was too wide for jumping across, and the water was too cold for swimming.

As they wanted to get on the other side, and had brought an ax, it occurred to them that they might cut down a tree, so that it would fall across the creek and form a bridge. So they set at work, but a poor job they made of it, tiring themselves out with hacking that was nothing like chopping. Then Sam Roden interfered.

"Excuse me, fellows," said he, "but I think you had better let me do that, as it's in my line. If you will look up that tree, you will see that it would never fall across the stream. Let's find another."

He found a tree that suited him, and in a few minutes he cut it down, lodging the top on the other side of the creek, and leaving a clean and level stump. Then he trimmed away the branches on the upper side of the fallen tree, completing the bridge.

The boys all crossed over, and walked along the course of the creek until they came to Bestor's pond, where the water spread out into a little lake, a short distance above the fall, and seemed to have no current to speak of.

Here they found a skiff, which they borrowed without permission of the owner, and five of the oldest boys, as many as it would hold, got in, and paddled about the pond.

But they went too far down, and the current was swifter than they thought, and soon it was drawing them rapidly toward the falls.

Then they tried to row against it, but they were poor oarsmen, and as our broke, and they were hurried downward, crying in vain for help.

Not quite in vain! Sam Roden had run down to the water's edge, holding his rope in a coil in his right hand.

"Hi, there!" he shouted; "catch this!"

With a free swing of his arm, he flung the rope, and it flew over the pond in circles and curves.

"Take a turn!" directed Sam. And he called to the boys who remained on shore to come to his assistance.

They pulled the boat to the bank, where its living freight was unloaded, and nobody cared to venture in it again.

"Well, Texas, you do amount to something, after all," said Ben Travis, who had been the leader of the boys in the boat. "If it hadn't been for that rope of yours, we would have been in a pickle."

"I know how to use a lasso."

learned that much in Texas," quietly remarked Sam Roden.

The boys retraced their steps, crossed the creek again, and made their way to an old field, which was surrounded by a high fence. They had noticed it as they came down, and had pronounced it a capital place for a game of ball.

They climbed the fence and soon settled down to the game.

It happened that there were just enough of them for the two sides, without Sam Roden. So Sam was left out, and he sauntered through a piece of woods that occupied one corner of the lot, and played with his lasso.

But the boys had hardly got heated up in their game, when they heard moaning sort of roar that was enough to frighten the biggest and boldest of them.

A bull, which had been the sole tenant of the old field, heard their shouts, and came down by the path of woods to investigate the invaders.

The sight of one of the boys' red shirts made him furious, and he rushed for the ball party, with his head down and his eyes gleaming.

They scattered and ran; but the fence was far away, and the bull was close behind them, and it seemed to be a sure thing that some of them must suffer.

But Sam Roden had watched the charge of the infuriated beast, and he was standing at a corner of the timber, with his coiled lasso in his right hand.

As the bull came within range, he let it fly.

Without stopping to watch the effect of the throw, he hastened to take a couple of turns with the end of the line around a stout sapling.

The lasso, thrown as he had often thrown it on the cattle farm, settled over the animal's horns, and Sam and the sapling brought him to a sudden stop. He reared and plunged madly, and then fell over on his side.

Sam made his line fast, and the boys perceived that they were safe. They found the owner of the bull, who recovered the lasso for Sam, and they went home without meeting any more adventures.

Compliments were showered upon Sam Roden, to which he listened silently, doing a little thinking on his own account.

"We can't all do good at the same thing, fellows," was the only comment he made upon the day's proceedings.

After that the boys of Mr. Robey's school showed respect to Sam Roden, and were glad to associate with him. They helped him with his studies, and his progress was as rapid as his best friends could have desired.—Golden Days.

WANTED THE COUPON.

Lady Who Had Purchased Ten Cents Worth of Postage Stamps.

Many of Manchester's merchants are giving trading coupons to the amount of ten cents or more, which possess a value when one has acquired a certain number. The merchant, of course, has to pay for the coupons, and they are given out as a matter of advertising. A most amusing incident occurred Saturday evening in a store on Elm street, not a thousand miles from the Weston & Fitts block. A lady walked into the store and asked for five 5-cent stamps. It took all there was in the store, but the proprietor wished to please the lady. She took the stamps, handed him and—wait!

"Is there something else, madam?" queried the proprietor.

"Oh, no," replied the lady, "that is, nothing that I wish to buy." And still she waited.

"You gave me the correct change for the stamps, did you not, madam?" asked the proprietor, noticing she still lingered.

"Yes, sir," replied the lady.

"And you are sure there's nothing else you wanted?"

"Well, I noticed that you gave trading coupons here, and, as I have bought ten cents' worth of stamps, I am waiting for a coupon."

The proprietor is slowly recovering.—Manchester Union.

The Landlord's Mistake.

Lord Tennyson told the following story on himself, describing an incident of his journeying in Scotland in 1890. After he had lodged all night in a room at a small inn where he was not known to the host, a gentleman asked the landlord: "Do you know who had been in your room last night?" "No," he was a pleasant shrewtman. "It was Tennyson, the poet." "At what time he was here?" "He is a writer of verses, such as you see in the papers." "No, to think of that! Just a public writer, and I find him a best bedroom!" Of Mrs. Tennyson, however, the landlord remarked: "Oh, but she was an angel!"

No Time for Talk.

The Magazine of Laughter.

Has laughter gone out? Are we never again to have the honest guffaw—the loud laugh, which as the poet says, bespeaks the vacant mind? Is this really a true account of the national condition? If so, probably it has gone out, at any rate in polite circles. Because we are nothing now, if we are cultured and refined; and to be vulgar and to be ignorant are worse offences than any more explicitly forbidden in the D-e-slogue. And yet it almost seems a pity too. It is not well, surely, to lose any innocent and, happily, infectious expression of pleasure in a world so bedeviled as ours.

Also! I fear there is no doubt that the power of irrepressible laughter is the gift of youth, and youth only, whether in nations or in individuals. Passing the drawing room door the other afternoon, I could hear inside a peal of silvery, girlish laughter. It was Miss Ethel who was entertaining her school friends with tea and bread and butter and jokes.

This is the time of life for laughter. I dare say the jokes would not have made me smile. But when the spring tide is blossoming, and the sap is running upward in the trees, and the vernal woods are bursting into leaf and echoing with song, and, wherever you look, all is verdure and joy, almost anything can move quick laughter. Or there is an earlier stage, when baby is being tickled by mamma and crows with delight. Or, though this is true, is often silent, there is that most beautiful of all sights—the little blue-eyed boy or girl, who, like the whitehead at dawn, and smiles and ripples with laughter at some innocent, childish thought. It is good to hear baby laugh, it is good to watch these baby smiles.

But laughter can be not only grotesque, but very dreadful as well. To hear a maniac laugh is one of the most terrible experiences. To hear a hundred laugh, as one does in hearing the Isola dei Pezzi at Venice, is a foretaste of the lower regions.

Farther on in the downward path of life, when the soul is very near, the faintest of the mind is often proclaimed by violent laughter. The old man is back again in the scenes of boyhood, and is going over in a dream the days of long ago. I remember well, lying awake in London lodgings, through an otherwise still 'n' e night, unable to sleep for the loud, incessant laughter pealing from the room above, where the old maid of the house lay dying. When it ended, just before dawn, the old life ended with it; and in the morning's daylight came on to me, in sudden fact and to express the hope that I had not been much disturbed. The old man, she assured me, had fainted, but had been going over his boyish days again; the old brothers, long years dead and forgotten, were with him; and they were crier king, or gathering apples or swinging, or swimming together across the old brook, all that sleepless night. One would think that the laughter had had an awful soul.

The Hicks 1898 Almanac and Paper.

We are informed that the 1898 Almanac of Prof. I. R. Hicks is now ready, and judging from its past history, it will not be many weeks in finding its way into homes and offices all over America. It is much larger and finer than any previous issue. It contains 116 pages, is splendidly printed and illustrated on fine book paper, having the latest portrait ever given of Prof. Hicks. It can no longer be denied that the publications of Prof. Hicks have become a necessity to the family and commercial life of this country. His journal, "Word and Works," aside from its storm, weather and astronomical features, has taken rank with the best literary, scientific and family magazines of the age. Do not believe hearsay and reports. See the Hicks Almanac and paper for yourself. You will then know why they are so popular. They are educators of the millions, and unvaried safeguards to property and human life. It is matter of simple record that Prof. Hicks has foretold for many years all great storms, floods, droughts and tornadoes, even the recent terrible drought over all the country. The Almanac alone is 25 cents a copy. The paper is $1.00 a year with the Almanac as a premium. Send to—Word And Works Pub. Co., 2201 Locust St. St. Louis, Mo.

Wester was elected in Louisville by 2,658 in forty over Taylor. Every Democrat on the ticket for counties and city offices was elected by majorities ranging from 1,200 up. One or two of the best legislators in the state are in doubt, but the Democrats swept all the rest.

The constitutional amendment changing the taxation of city property of certain classes from ad valorem to a special system, has probably passed the odds of the legislature. It has 23,250 for and 12,478 against. It is the most popular measure in a hardy defeat it, as very few persons voted on it.

DRAWINGS AND RESCUES.

Are Different in Real Life Than in the Novels.

In fiction it is common enough to read of the hero of a story plunging in gallantly to the rescue of a drowning heroine, and hearing her with "powerful strokes" to shore. These descriptions seem to have suggested themselves to writers from observation of a dog retrieving a piece of wood thrown into the water; but in actual practice they do not exist. Good swimmers who have made a study and practice of imaginary rescue in the water have found, and verify how difficult it is for even a nude swimmer to retrieve and bring to bank another nude comrade who is quite competent—acting the part of a drowning man, and not hysterical nor half insensible. Such a performer does not clutch nor impede his rescuer, and yet this sort of artificial rescue made easy opens the eyes of those who essay it to the weight, the difficulty of free striking out, and the slowness of progress which occur to the rescuer.

When, in lieu of a make-believe rescue, the real operation has to be performed, it becomes far more arduous even if attempted and conducted scientifically, still more so if the rescuer, inexperienced, advances to join hands with the friend in trouble, like partners in a dance. The semi-conscious state of the drowning person destroys all presence of mind on the part of the latter, even if the commodity ever existed in him, and he instinctively clutches at anything which he feels, and which seems to offer support. The correct approach to a drowning person is from behind, and very guardedly, to avoid a clutch. Once arrived at him, a very light support, given at arm's length and while treading water, under the ears or the nape of the neck, will suffice to keep the object's head above water. If, while thus supported, the rescued party is not too far gone to recover respiration, the rescuer may presently tow his burden backward to safety.

With a woman, if her hair is real and can be drawn out as a tow rope, the task is rather easier, and progress may soon commence. If it is a man who is being saved, and he cannot recover his breath, and gain presence of mind to keep still while he is saved, the work is much harder, because as soon as the rescuer begins to move shoreward, there is a chance of his legs trailing to touch those of his burden, and the latter, if he can clutch them with hand or leg, obtains a fulcrum and purchase from which he may wiggle around and clutch and sink his preserver and himself also.

We have known a cool-headed rescuer give the length of ducking the head of a persistently struggling object of rescue until he produced temporary loss of senses, this being the safest operation for both parties, after due examination of the position. A really insensible but still animate body is the easiest of all to bring to bank.

FACTS ABOUT DIVORCES.

Government Collects Some Interesting Statistics on the Subject.

The United States government has collected statistics showing the duration of marriage before divorce, the figures covering a period of 20 years. In the last 30 years 500,000 divorces have been granted in the United States. The figures for the last ten years have not yet been published, but for the 19 years from 1867 to 1886 statistics show that the divorce high-water mark belongs to those who have been married four years.

Beginning with the one-year married people, the total is, roughly, 15,000. For the four years period, the total is nearly double—27,000. It grows much smaller, but until the figures for those who have been married nine years are reached, the one-year figure is not touched. The total decreases steadily until the 30-year married number 4,000. Those who have been married 21 years and over reach the enormous total of 25,000. Evidently compatibility need not increase as the years fly by.

In this class, however, a reversal of the "endurance" figures is shown, for the average duration of married life for the husband is 27.47, while for the wives it is only 26.70.

While, divorce aside, the average duration of married life from 22 to 26 years, the average duration of married life to the divorced is only 9.17 years, being 9.27 for the wife and 8.97 for the husband. This difference between husband and wife suggests that the weaker sex really is the stronger in bearing the woes of the married.

Source of the Gulf Stream.

Recent investigations by Dr. Lindbergh have shown that the principal source of the Gulf Stream is not the Florida channel, but the region between and beside the islands of the West Indies. At Bimini the volume of this warm water is 60 times as great as the combined volume of all the rivers of the world at their mouths.

—TUESDAY, NOV. 9, 1897—

TO THE BIG FOUR.

There are four Democrats on the new City Council, constituting a majority of that body. Upon these men devolves the responsibility of giving Hopkinsville a Democratic administration. They were elected as Democratic nominees in a straight party fight and the people expect them to do their duty as Democrats. A part of their duty is to see that no man who was not true to his party is given any position in the city government. There are Democrats willing to fill these places and no man who does not stand with both feet upon the party platform has a right to expect any reward from those who won the hard fought battle for supremacy last week. Five or six of the present city officials voted and worked against the Democratic nominees in an unholy alliance with Republicans, white and black. The heads of these men should be chopped off without mercy or delay. Some of them also voted against the party ticket last year and took part in organizations intended to overturn Democratic principles. Let no mistakes be made this time. See that every man from the highest to the lowest officer is a Democrat who believes in his party and its platform as a matter of principle. There is work to be done to keep Hopkinsville in Democratic hands and no man who is not known to be true all along the line should be trusted in office.

The editor of the Kentuckian is not a candidate for any office within the gift of the Council, but as a private citizen and a member of the Democratic organization of the State, we claim the right to ask that only Democrats who love their party be placed in office. Let a Democratic caucus be held and nominations made for every office from pound-keeper to Mayor.

Now that the election is over we have a word of friendly advice for the Independent. For the honor and decency of the Hopkinsville press, we are glad to see that Mr. Metcalfe has cleansed his columns of the billingsgate and abuse of the anonymous liar and assassin of private character who was given free rein during the campaign to abuse and vilify the Democratic candidates and their supporters. The people have spoken upon the issues raised by the Independent and Mr. Metcalfe should let this, his first experience in the dirty work of politics, be his last, and strive in future to elevate local journalism instead of lowering its standard to the level of the contemptible and cowardly creature who did its mud-slinging under its recent contract.

We say this in a kindly spirit. The Independent's lying and scurrilous assaults upon good citizens were a disgrace to decent journalism. The identity of the writer has not been disclosed, but his lack of gentlemanly instincts was apparent in all he wrote. There is no place in Hopkinsville journalism for such cattle. Do your own editorial work hereafter, Mr. Metcalfe, and if your paper cannot be loyal and truthful, let it at least be decent.

The City Council passed an ordinance Friday night requiring all bicycles to be provided with bells. We seriously doubt the wisdom of this action. Chicago has repealed just such a law, on the ground that the wheelman does not exercise proper care when he has a bell. He simply rings his bell and speeds ahead, upon the idea that ringing has given him the right-of-way. There are four hundred bicycles in Hopkinsville and the incessant jingling of bells may confuse both riders and pedestrians and do more harm than good. This was the experience of Chicago where the law was tried. The rider without a bell is more apt to be careful and on the lookout to avoid collisions and accidents. But a trial of the ordinance will show whether the law is a good one or not.

The Democrats have a clear majority of two-thirds in both branches of the Legislature and the Governor's veto will be no obstacle to the way of some much needed legislation.

The election returns for Christian county show that Mr. Forbes, who leads the Democratic ticket, received only 176 votes short of the Bryan vote last year, while Cansler, his opponent, is 1,190 votes behind McKelvey's vote. The average Democratic vote was 100 short and the average Republican vote 1000 short. The Democrats have reason to be proud of their day's work, but what a pity it is that the other 400 didn't turn out and save Forbes from defeat.

Mr. Geo. E. Gary, Chairman of the Democratic Campaign Committee, deserves a great deal of credit for cutting down the Republican majority a thousand votes in Christian county. He was untiring in his work of organization, intelligent and far-seeing in planning and skillful and energetic in executing. The campaign was the hardest fought one the Republicans have had in recent years and but for their lavish use of money the whole outfit would have been badly beaten.

Jas. T. Coleman, the brainy young lawyer who was elected County Attorney of Caldwell, has reason to be proud of his splendid race. He was elected by 288 majority over his Republican opponent. The Democrats made no mistake in putting him on their ticket.

Turner Lockett, a staunch young Democrat who remained true to the party in spite of the influence of his older relatives, has respected the reward of his loyalty. He was elected city attorney of Henderson Tuesday by 402-180 majority.

The roster will once more come first on the official ballots, the victorious party being entitled to that position.

Was Growing Worse

Liver and Stomach Troubles—Too Weak to Work—Now Able to Do All Her Household Work.

"I was under the care of a physician for two years and he was treating me for stomach and liver troubles and female difficulties, but I only grew worse under his treatment. I was so weak I could do hardly any work. I was at last induced to try Hood's Sarsaparilla and Hood's Pills and these medicines have done me so much good that I now weigh 112 pounds and am able to do all my household work. I firmly believe I should have been in my grave today if it had not been for Hood's Sarsaparilla. My little girl was afflicted with phtisis. I gave her Hood's Sarsaparilla and it has relieved her." SAM FRANKEL'S

SPECIAL SALE and OPENING

LADIES', MISSES' AND CHILDREN'S JACKETS, CAPES and BLOUSES, ON

THURSDAY and FRIDAY, NOV. 11th & 12th.

Mr. L. Huebschman, representing the largest and best Cloak House in the United States, will have on sale and display at our store all the latest styles and colors of Jackets, Capes, Blouses and Wraps. Over 1000 Garments in the lot. A chance to secure your wraps at Manufacturers' Prices. Don't forget the dates and come early and get first selections.

Respectfully, Yours to Please,

Sam Frankel,

At the Same Old Stand, = = = No. 15 MAIN STREET.

An attempt was made to assassinate President Maes, of Brazil, Saturday. The president's brother was probably mortally wounded and Gen. Bethencourt, minister of war, was killed. There were two assassins, one armed with a dagger and the other with a pistol. The man with the dagger was captured, but the other escaped without being seen.

Four adjoining counties in this section elect young lady school superintendents, as follows: Christian, Miss Katie McDaniel; Caldwell, Miss Nanie Catlett; Crittenden, Miss Mina Wheeler; Hopkins, Miss Sallie Brown. Perhaps twenty ladies are elected in the State to fill these positions.

The Fusion ticket in Hancock went through except county judge, clerk and jailer, which offices went to the Republicans. Bailey got 930, Shuckelford 542, Parker 35, Hindman 25, and Wallace 6. J. L. Brown, Democrat-Populist, was elected representative by 4 votes.

Some radical changes are needed in the election boards. The coming legislature should by all means give a more general scope to the registration law and there should by all means be a poll tax clause added, requiring all voters to pay their poll taxes before they can vote. This would in a measure register and locate all voters and at the same time add many thousands of dollars to the State revenues. The device should also be taken off the ballots and the ballots reduced in size and otherwise simplified. A pictorial ballot is a reflection upon the intelligence of any man who has sense enough to vote upon public questions. Let safeguards be thrown around the exercise of suffrage, the voting itself made easier and then let public officers be compelled to observe the law by appointing officers from lists supplied by county committees. The powers of election inspectors should be further extended, so as to allow each party to appoint an inspector to watch the final count by the county canvassing boards. It is to be hoped that Senator Crenshaw will devote special attention to the passage of amendments embodying these needed additions to the provisions of the State election law.

In the next legislature there will be six preachers, five doctors and five editors.

Worn Out?

Do you come to the close of the day thoroughly exhausted? Does this continue day after day, possibly week after week? Perhaps you are even too exhausted to sleep. Then something is wrong. All these things indicate that you are suffering from nervous exhaustion. Your nerves need feeding and your blood enriching.

Scott's Emulsion

of Cod-liver Oil, with Hypophosphites of Lime and Soda, contains just the remedies to meet these wants. The cod-liver oil gives the needed strength, enriches the blood, feeds the nerves, and the hypophosphites give them tone and vigor. Be sure you get SCOTT'S Emulsion.

ORDINANCE.

Be it ordained by the Board of Council of the city of Hopkinsville, Kentucky, that Section five (5) of Chapter XXV. of the Revised Ordinances of the City of Hopkinsville, adopted and approved the 6th day of August, 1894, and in force from the first day of September, 1895, together with all amendments thereto, be, and the same is hereby repealed, and the following section is adopted in lieu thereof:

The tax on circuses, menageries and all shows and exhibitions, held in or under tents or canopies, shall be fifty dollars for each circus, menagerie, show each and every exhibition, when the admission fee is fifty cents for adults, and when the admission fee for such persons is less than fifty cents, the license fee shall be one dollar for every cent of admission fee for adults. Provided that proprietors, managers or lessees of any public hall within the city shall have the right to take out license for such hall at the rate of twenty-five dollars per annum, and in case such license shall be taken out any theatrical or other exhibition may be had in such hall during the continuance of such license without further license tax.

It is further provided that any show or exhibition that is of such character as is not embraced in this ordinance, shall be at no lower fee than two dollars and fifty cents per day. This ordinance to take effect from and after its adoption and publication. Approved, Nov. 8, 1897.

His Last Vote.

Uncle Jimmie Lindsay, of the Allegree precinct, who is no doubt the oldest man in Todd Co., having been born 1805, cast his last vote Tuesday which was in favor of the Democratic ticket. He was carried to the polls by Ben Bartlett, and upon being assisted from the buggy, he made to quite a number of enthusiastic friends a short talk in which he said he, cast his first vote for Andrew Jackson when he made his first race for the presidency and had ever supported Jacksonian Democracy. He completed his remarks by a few pathetic sentences in which he said he was about to exercise the right of suffrage for the last time.—Pembroke Review.

A SPECIAL BARGAIN - FOR - NEWSPAPER READERS. The Twice-a-Week Republic and KENTUCKIAN BOTH ONE YEAR. $2 25.

It is scarcely necessary to call attention to the superior merits of The Twice-a-Week edition of The St. Louis Republic as a newspaper.

It has as many advantages as a news gatherer, that no other paper can claim to be its equal. The whole field of news is covered thoroughly. The special features and illustrations are always the best. More noted writers contribute to its columns than to any other paper of its class. It is published especially to meet the wants of that large class of readers who have not the opportunity or can not afford to read a daily paper.

It is the leading Democratic paper of the Mississippi Valley and the South and West.

By a special arrangement made for a limited time only, our friends will be given an opportunity to take advantage of this liberal proposition.

Remember the offer: The Twice-a-Week Republic, 16 pages a week, and the Kentuckian, both one year for only $2.25.

KNOWING HOW NOT ENOUGH.

More Than Knowledge Is Requisite for Doing a Thing Well

It is the easiest thing in the world to see how a thing ought to be done; it is often the hardest thing in the world to do this very plain and simple thing. A very few minutes' observation will make the game of golf as simple as kite-flying, but how many games must be played before that knowledge gets out of the brain into the hands! Many people suppose that as soon as a man has learned a piece of work ought to be done he can do it; not knowing that the real differences between men are not differences of brain, but differences of instinct and skill. A little study makes it entirely possible to understand how the great picture was painted, but what a training lies between that initial knowledge and the ability to paint the picture! We are slow to learn the truth that the education of the intellect, no matter how thorough and complete, is only rudimentary; education must go through a process by which the individual is instinct into his personality before he can be said to be finished or to count for anything productively. "It is the unintelligent Me, stupid as an idiot," says Dr. Holmes, "that has to try a thing a thousand times before he can do it, and then never knows how he does it, that it is that does it." There is a depth of insight and philosophy in these words that no rarely finds in formal discussions of educational questions; a wisdom that both teachers and pupils are slow to learn.

Between knowing and doing there is a gulf which can be crossed only by the most searching and exacting education; and yet it is constantly assumed, in the face of the universal experience of all men who have tried to attain moral or artistic mastery, that the chief end of education is attained when knowledge is communicated. The medical student learns in the first day of his actual dealing with disease that he has only passed through the primary stages of education; the law student discovers with his first case that he is not only at the beginning of his professional career, but of his training as a lawyer; the young minister, facing the earliest problems of his parish work, wonders what he did with his time in the seminary; and the art student, beginning to do creative work, marvels to find himself so clumsy and ineffective. It was easy enough to educate the intellect, but the training of the eye, the hand, the ear, the judgment, is another matter. Knowledge must strike down into the region of instinct before we can call ourselves in any real sense educated, and our comprehension of methods must become almost unconscious skill before we can do anything fresh, original, and fruitful. The intellect is a door through which a great many people never pass, because they suppose there is nothing beyond it; as a matter of fact, all the beauty and greatness of life lie beyond it. And every man who has known the tragic difference between knowing the right thing to do and doing it has learned past all gleaning that moral education begins with the mind but ends with the will.—N. Y. Outlook.

Prof. Andree's Balloon.

Christiana, Oct. 28.—Dispatches received here from Vardoe, the balloon in the Arctic ocean, off Fiumar, which with Vardoehus is the most northern fort in Europe, say the public here is fully convinced of the fact that the report that the ship sighted Prof. Andree's balloon, floating on September 23, near Prince Charles promontory, Spitzbergen. The news has caused considerable among the friends of Prof. Andree.

Brakmo, the Arctic explorer, proposed to sail for Prince Charles promontory in order to investigate the truth of the story told by the crew of the whaler.

Capt. Sverdrup of Dr. Nansen's exploring ship Fram, does not believe the report of the sighting of Andree's balloon floating near Prince Charles promontory is correct.

A FANCY YOKE.

Can Be Worn with a Plain Frock of Any Material or Color.

They are making fancy yokes out of the novelty "black" velvet, many of which are home-combed with tiny gilt braids. This gives them weight and makes them ideal yoke materials. These velvet come home-combed in every color and in gold, silver and bronze. The yoke is cut very plain and is fastened at the back with brilliant buttons.

A very pretty effect is obtained with the black home-combed velvet by finishing ing the neck with a collar of black velvet laid in folds, with a color introduced. Black and burnt orange are the most elegant. Above are small tips that hug the throat, and the same extend across the bust.

At the arms, back and front, there is placed a long black plume, which leans over the shoulder, meeting midline. This forms a high epaulette, which is becoming to nearly every figure.

THE DRESS OF A BELLE.

Miss Brice, of Washington, Appears in Sporting Toggles.

Miss Brice, daughter of the senator, is noted for her elegant costumes. She designs most of them herself, and she wears them with great grace. One of her most striking dresses is of grass green tulle, made over taffeta. The waist is a baby waist, with full EVENING GOWN FOR MISS BRICE, according to plan, reached front and back. A little frill of point de Venise lace finishes the neck.

The most striking part of the costume is the robe which is worn with the dress. It is made of heavy green satin, with full pointed sleeves and long stole pieces front and back. These are lined with shell pink silk. The effect is particularly artistic, and one that might be copied by those of slender build.

FAMOUS CAT PAINTER.

A Lady of Brussels Who Has Won Both Fame and Fortune.

In a beautiful house in Brussels there lives an old lady, Mme. Henrietta Rosner, whose work has won her fame and money. Like Rosa Bonheur, she is an animal painter, but, instead of horses and cows, she specializes in cats. In the early part of the century her father, Joseph Augustus Kuip, was well known in Amsterdam as a flower and landscape painter, and was decorated with the Order of Art. Her destiny was to be that of a portrait painter, but she never liked it and determined to study animals. At the age of 18 she exhibited at Dusseldorf the picture of "A Cat in the Window," which attracted much attention, but the picture which made her reputation was "The Friend of Man," a cat was six feet by eight, representing an old man weeping over the death of one of his dogs, which had been used for drawing a cart.

Very soon afterward she turned her attention to cats, and she has painted every form and attitude and character and kind of cat and kitten. The cat in a glass case made for the purpose, with cushions which invite the animal to a natural position. Although 73 years of age, Mme. Rosner looks 30 years younger, save for her snowy white hair. What is most strange is the fact that one never sees a cat at Mme. Rosner's. When she wanted to paint one she has a model brought to her.—Chicago Record.

WANTED TO BE COAKED.

She Said "No," But Didn't Think She Would Take the Bluff

"No," said Evangeline Glendenning, as she looked down at the floor and nervously twisted her slim little fingers, "no, Alfred, I am sorry, but I cannot be."

Alfred Doncaster had loved the beautiful girl from the moment he had first seen her, and he had fondly believed that she looked upon him with more than ordinary favor. But his hopes lay shattered, and the future stretched out black before him.

The strong, handsome young man sighed, and was silent for a long time. At last the sweet maiden said:

"Try to be brave, Alfred. Look at me. See how I am bearing up."

He turned toward her in wonder, and said:

"Why should you bid me do this? What have you to bear up under?"

She shrunk back a little and replied:

"Oh, Alfred, if you only knew!"

"Evangeline!" he cried, catching her in his arms and holding her in a strong embrace, "you love me! Oh, darling, you cannot hide the truth from me! Tell me, it is so."

"Yes," she whispered, "I love you, Alfred."

"Oh, Heaven," he groaned, "this is terrible, terrible! Oh, if you only hated me—loathed me! Then my fate would be less bitter."

She was frightened, and drew away from him.

"Why," she asked, "do you want me to hate you?"

"Ah," he answered, "I might bear my own burden; but how can I survive, knowing that you, too, suffer?"

"Yet why should either of us suffer?" the trembling girl inquired.

"Because," he almost hissed, "do not jest with me! Why should we suffer? Are we not doomed to everlasting separation and misery? Are we not to be—"

"Oh," she interrupted, "you're not going to let a little bluff stop you right at the start, are you? Did you want me to tumble into your arms the first thing, as if I had been merely waiting for the word? You must be new at this business."

Then she became so angry that it took Alfred Doncaster nearly seven minutes to win her back again.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

LAW AND SUICIDE.

Self-Destruction on the Increase in France and England.

Suicide is quite alarmingly on the increase in France, and presents a serious problem to thoughtful statesmen in that country as the dwindling birth-rate comes from the church refuses its prayers, the army funeral with military honors. The same tendency is observable in England. What attitude ought the law of England to take up in the presence of this growing evil? It will be said that the law of England has long ago taken up its attitude on the subject of suicide, stigmatizing it as felony, and therefore visited with the consequences of felony. This is hard measure, and juries inclining to charity have of late years uniformly postulated insanity as an explanation, and returned a verdict of unsound mind as a presumption rather than an inference. Whether this presumption is well founded may be doubted. Even philosophers have not always been agreed as to the ethics of suicide. "Englishmen have the feeling in them that suicide is the refuge of the coward. In old days and in small communities the loss of an able-bodied tribesman was a source of weakness and danger. To our Anglo-Saxon race, with its overflowing population, this consideration is insignificant. The seriousness of the suicide problem consists in the fact that the prevalence of suicide is symptomatic of a diseased condition of the body politic. It is to this that law and legislation must address itself, not to any fresh penalties to be levied in the name of the law of life and inculcating a higher standard of citizenship.—London Law Journal.

It's a Poor Rule.

The marquis of Lorne, when governor general of Canada, was present at some sports held on the ice of the St. Lawrence. Through wrapped in furs he felt the cold acutely, and was astonished to see an ancient Indian meandering around barfooted, enveloped only in a blanket. He asked him why he was so dressed, and he said such a temperature when he had so little on. "Why you no cover face?" inquired the Indian. The marquis replied that no one ever did so, and that he was accustomed to have his face naked from birth. "Good," rejoined the Indian, "I am all face," and walked away.—San Francisco Wave.

Housekeeping.

If a woman is in good health there is no more healthful employment than housework. Generally speaking, there is no happier woman in the world. But how different when every breath is pain, every step torture! This state of health, in nine cases out of ten, comes from derangements of the delicate, feminine organs of generation. The family doctor inquires first concerning these. He most usually insists upon an "examination." From this the modest woman naturally shrinks. She is right. Except in very unusual cases of "female weakness" examinations are unnecessary. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a simple, natural remedy for these ills. It cures safely, permanently.
